President Gemayel met with Syrian Foreign Minister Khaddam today.

 Gemayel p	robably hop	pes to so	often the	Syrian posi	ition,
but it is	unlikely	that his	personal	entreaties	will succeed.

Prospects for an agreement between the opposing factions are slim. Little common ground exists between the hostile groups' demands, and the conference is only scheduled to last several days.

President Gemayel is under pressure from both sides and almost certainly is looking to the United States to force the antagonists to compromise.

The foreign parties to the Lebanese crisis are making mutually exclusive demands. Israel has declared that it will reject any results of the talks that do not validity of the Lebanese-Israeli agreement.
